Curriculum Vitae

Gianluca Cuniberti is professor (professore associato) in Ancient Greek History at the Department of Historical Studies of the University of Turin. He teaches Social and Economic History of the Ancient Greece and Exegesis of Sources (Erasmus network: Lisbona, Lyon, München, Warwick).

He got a fellowship at the "Istituto Italiano per gli Studi Storici" of Naples, the PhD at the University of Pisa and the post-doctorate at the University of Turin.

His scientific production is about the Athenian democracy, which is investigated by prosopographic, historiographic, juridical-institutional and social researches (the relationship between democracy and individual rights, participation and bribery, hegemony and autonomy; the oligarchic and democratic tensions in the practice and the political thought; the laws and the resolution of interpersonal and social conflicts). The researcher started to be interested in classical period of the ancient Athens and then amplified his investigation both from the chronological point of view (hellenistic Delos and Athens) and from the geographical one (especially Sparta, the historical and ideological antagonist of the Attic polis).

He is author of many papers published by international reviews and in proceedings of important congresses (recently at University of Athens, Fribourg, La Coruña, Liverpool, Lyon, Milano, Palermo, Paris, Roma), and moreover of the following books: Iperbolo ateniese infame, Napoli 2000; La polis dimezzata. Immagini storiografiche di Atene ellenistica, Alessandria-Torino 2006; Cleonimo di Atene traditore della patria, Alessandria 2012. Some works are published in international edition (English or French). Member of the editorial boards (Rivista di diritto ellenico - Ed. Dell'Orso; Rivista Storia del pensiero politico - Il Mulino; Collana Fonti e studi di storia antica - Ed. Dell'Orso) and of Sosipolis International Institute of Ancient Hellenic History - Greece, Gianluca Cuniberti is co-founder and journal manager of the scientific review "Historika. Studi di storia greca e romana" (www.historika.unito.it).

Gianluca Cuniberti is also vice president of the undergraduate degree in History and chairman of the humanistic teaching commission; he is member of the board of the Consulta universitaria per la storia greca e romana (Italian association of greek and roman historians). He coordinates a departmental group of research and was responsible of the financial management and the organization of the national researches program (PRIN); formerly, he directed complex work groups in cultural field of the public administration.
